

“Parents as Career Coaches” Workshop

The TWO-NIGHT Parents as Career Coaches workshop series is an engaging and invigorating career clarification program for parents with children in grades 9 through 11.

February 23nd and March 9th
at North Peace Secondary School
(all workshops are 6:30 - 9:00 pm)
Registration is Free and space is limited.

PACC is delivered through a “hands on” interactive workshop format.

Parents as Career Coaches strengthens the important role of parents in a youth’s career journey, and supports the existing programs offered by school districts.

Through the workshop, parents are guided through exercises that:

- Explore values placed on / communicated about jobs, occupations, careers
- Update current labour market dynamics & future employment trends
- Highlight the impact of parents and their role in the career journey, including
 - clarification for understanding & improved communications
 - identifying & aligning interests & values, skills & strengths
 - developing career clusters, acquisition pathways, and an explore list
- Align parents as co-researchers, connectors, supporters & coaches

For more information call Jodi Hickey at 250-785-4429

Presenter, Brent Calvert: Brent is passionate about helping students find their place in the modern world of work and gain empowering technology, business and design skills. He is the President of the Capilano Faculty Association at Capilano University, manages the innovative Interactive Design program, delivers the impactful community-based Parents as Career Coaches workshop series, and consults in education technology investments for the Gerson Lehrman Group out of New York, NY.

Parents as Career Coaches is delivered through the sponsorship of the Career Education Department
School District No 60